Technology

The members of Butzel's Technology Practice have the experience and broad knowledge base to handle a wide range of technology issues -- from the unique to the commonplace -- enabling its clients to focus on their core businesses and feel secure about technology-related legal matters.

Our clients include Fortune 500 companies and smaller owner-operated businesses, and count among them an array of technology and non-technology businesses, such as healthcare, manufacturing and educational entities. The members of this group also work closely with Butzel lawyers in various other practice areas to ensure a sophisticated breadth of legal analysis.

From data and records management retention to the drafting of IT outsourcing agreements, software and hardware contracts and PCI compliance issues, our attorneys have the industry insight and understanding to address technology matters on every level. We also provide clients with a variety of on-site and off-site support and work with vendors and existing IT professionals to implement comprehensive technology programs that best meet our clients' needs.
