Trade Secrets Theft

Butzel's white collar criminal defense team defends former employees and companies that are accused of misappropriating trade secrets. We have represented employees accused of trade secret thefts from Fortune 500 companies that exceeded $100 million. Our team reviews materials, works with experts to properly evaluate and value the claimed trade secret, and defends these cases in court. Our attorneys routinely walk clients through every stage of the investigation process, and we work with prosecutors and law enforcement officials to secure the best outcome for our clients, which can include decisions not to prosecute. Should formal charges arise, we guide clients through the trial process. Our team has handled hundreds of complex criminal jury trials and appeals.
