Understanding Michigan's new Paid Medical Leave Act

By Karen Dybis – February 14, 2019

The Michigan Legislature recently enacted, and later amended, a new paid sick leave law – the first of its kind in the state. It goes into effect in March.

The new law was enacted and amended in an unusual manner, which has led to much uncertainty and conflicting information.

Rebecca Davies, a labor and employment attorney at Butzel Long, is an expert on the current status of Michigan's Paid Sick Leave Act and helps businesses identify the top 10 things all Michigan employers should know about the new law.
