DBusiness Daily News discusses Butzel Long's donation to the Salvation Army in a round-up of news in the COVID-19 Update

7.1.2020

Detroit's Butzel Long law firm is helping to provide nutritious food to families in need by donating $2,500 to the Salvation Army Eastern Michigan Division. The donation through the Butzel Long Charitable Trust will provide 2,336 meals to families struggling with food insecurity, feeding many families for several days.

Throughout the year, Butzel Long supports many local organizations, charities, and community activities in an effort to give back to the city that it has been located in for more than 160 years.

"Metro Detroit has been severely impacted by the current health and economic crises," says Paul M. Mersino, an attorney and shareholder at Butzel Long and trustee of its Charitable Trust. "Families depend on local food pantries. It is important to support our community and the good work of organizations like the Salvation Army and Gleaners. Butzel Long will continue to find ways to help our neighbors in need."
