TROY, Mich. – Butzel attorney Beth S. Gotthelf is among a group of leaders who will present the keynote opening during the 11th Annual American Institute of Professional Geologists (AIPG) Michigan Section's Environmental Risk Management Workshop – Best Practices for Groundwater Remediation and Management, June 14-15, 2022 in Roscommon. The panel will discuss perspectives on the groundwater management policy in Michigan and the economic impact of institutional controls.

Gotthelf is Butzel's Director of Innovation and External Relations, Co-Chair of the Energy & Sustainability Practice, and Co-Chair of the Aerospace & Defense industry team.

Notably, she was recently appointed Chair of the Michigan Manufacturers Association (MMA) Environmental Policy Committee. Members actively monitor water, solid waste, remediation and other environmental issue areas to develop environmental policy priorities for MMA.

Gotthelf started her career in the environmental law arena and remains a leader to this date. She has served in a range of roles including general counsel to the Michigan Chapter of the National Association of Surface Finishers (1990-present). In 2021, Gotthelf received the National Association's prestigious Award of Merit. She created the first wetland bank in Michigan and has been active in a variety of enforcement cases both on behalf of government and industry, most involving multi-million dollar corrective actions. Her counseling includes compliance, emergency response, remediation, redevelopment, tax incentives, enforcement, occupational safety and health, and insurance coverage.
