Brian Turetsky counsels banks, traditional lenders, fintech companies, and other businesses offering financial products on a range of consumer financial services issues, including applicable laws and regulations. Drawing on his experience as both a litigator and a transactional attorney, Brian advises on legal and regulatory matters that can arise in a variety of contexts, such as product development, origination, servicing, examinations, investigations, enforcement actions, and litigation.

With over 20 years of experience, including serving as Assistant General Counsel and Executive Director at JPMorgan Chase, Brian provides practical solutions to mitigate risk and enhance the customer experience. He has extensive experience across a host of lending products, including installment loans, credit cards, auto loans, student loans, mortgages, rent-to-own, Buy Now Pay Later, solar lending, and income share agreements. He is well-versed in a range of laws and regulations, including TILA, CFPA, FTC Act, FCRA, TCPA, EFTA, CLA, E-SIGN, ECOA, SCRA, MLA, FTC regulations, and state laws governing retail installment sales, sweepstakes, and unfair, deceptive, and abusive acts and practices.

As a former policy aide to the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development and liaison to the White House, Brian has a keen understanding of the broader public policy landscape that shapes many of the challenges his clients encounter.
