Jason Rosen is a trusted advocate for businesses, serving as a litigator, a corporate transactional lawyer, and a Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialist (CAMS). As former securities trader and financial advisor, he brings a deep understanding of the financial components and internal workings of a business beyond the legal matters faced by the companies he represents.

As a business litigator, Jason represents clients in high-stakes disputes involving contracts, partnerships, shareholder issues, and business torts. He understands the pressure litigation can place on operations, reputation, or revenue, and delivers strategic, results-driven advocacy to every case, whether in state or federal court, arbitration, mediation, or negotiations.

On the transactional side, Jason serves as outside counsel to a wide range of businesses, from startups to established enterprises, providing practical, forward-thinking guidance on day-to-day operations and corporate deals. This includes everything from entity formation and governance to contract drafting, vendor negotiations, and mergers and acquisitions.

Prior to joining Hinshaw, Jason was the managing partner of the only U.S. office of an international law firm, founded his own boutique business law firm, worked alongside his father in a white collar defense practice, and interned with the Enforcement Division of the United States Securities and Exchange Commission in Miami, Florida.
