Hinshaw Helps Secure Sanctions Order Totaling $1M against "Serial Litigator"

April 8, 2019

Hinshaw attorneys Tom McGarry and Michael Ruff recently teamed up to help secure what is likely the biggest Illinois Supreme Court Rule 137 sanction ever awarded in Cook County. Cook County Circuit Judge Margaret Ann Brennan granted bids for sanctions brought by Hinshaw and several other firms against a plaintiff and his lawyer for having engaged in a "pattern of abuse" in litigation that included nearly 400 court filings and multiple frivolous complaints. The Judge imposed more than $1M in attorney fees and costs, and issued an injunction barring the plaintiff from filing any more actions against the parties concerning the underlying claims.

The case centered around a condominium association dispute that "needlessly mushroomed" into multifaceted litigation involving multiple condo owners and condo association lawyer Michael C. Kim of Michael C. Kim & Associates, according to McGarry. Hinshaw represented Kim in the case.
