Hinshaw Analyzes Key U.S. Insurance Developments in the 2025 Annual Insurance Review Published by RPC

January 22, 2025

The newly released 2025 Annual Insurance Review published by Global Access Lawyers partner law firm RPC provides a comprehensive analysis of the significant factors that influenced the global insurance market over the past year and offers insights into what to anticipate in 2025.

Scott Seaman and Pedro Hernandez, co-chairs of Hinshaw's Insurance Services Practice Group, authored the United States chapter of the Review, which addresses a wide array of critical insurance developments, including:

- emerging risk factors for insurers, such as economic inflation, climate change, environmental, social, and governance (ESG) considerations, and challenges posed by artificial intelligence;
- notable litigation victories for insurers in the ongoing business interruption coverage disputes stemming from the COVID-19 pandemic;
- a remarkable volume of U.S. Supreme Court cases impacting the insurance sector throughout 2024;
- the implications of the new Trump Administration on the insurance industry; among other relevant topics.
