May 5, 2015

Robert J. Romero, Partner-in-Charge of the Hinshaw and Culbertson LLP San Francisco office, was recently featured on a profile for the UC Davis School of Law website that features successful alumni from the university. The profile takes a look at Mr. Romero's time at the UC Davis School of Law, specifically analyzing his experiences at King Hall.

The profile begins looking at Robert J. Romero's current legal work at Hinshaw and Culbertson LLP where he discusses that he feels fortunate to have the opportunity to be a trial attorney due to the unique learning opportunities it provides him. Mr. Romero also mentions the significance of joining the firm as it provided him with a broader platform and access to more opportunities.

The profile then examines his experience at King Hall, such as his favorite memory, class and professor. He mentions that he took a Trial Practice class that benefited him greatly because it allowed him to focus on civil trials and develop networks with other successful attorneys.

The profile concludes by discussing Robert J. Romero's advice to current law students. He states that his most important advice for current law students is to never forget the reason why they want to become a lawyer because those who stay true to their goals are the ones to achieve true success.
