

News

Edward Lenci Mentioned in Law360 Article on ACS Loan Inflation Suit

August 31, 2012

Edward K. Lenci, a New York-based partner in the Insurance & Reinsurance practice at Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP, was mentioned in the article, "Judge Orders Arbitration In ACS Loan Inflation Suit," published by Law360 on August 31, 2012.

The article discusses how a federal judge granted student loan servicer Affiliated Computer Services' (ACS) request to force arbitration with a borrower who filed a proposed class action alleging the company inflated his debt, after the U.S. Supreme Court reversed his decision to deny arbitration. Mr. Lenci represented ACS in the case and said his client is pleased with the ruling.

Read the full article, "Judge Orders Arbitration In ACS Loan Inflation Suit," on the Law360 website. Please note a subscription is required.

Edward K. Lenci handles complex business litigations and arbitrations, including international arbitrations, as well as reinsurance disputes, class action defense, and appeals. His successes include a class action defense victory before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Attorneys

Edward K. Lenci

Offices

New York