

News

Conrad C. Nowak Shares Military Management Skills in Construction Today

March 22, 2017

Hinshaw & Culbertson LLP partner Conrad C. Nowak recently published an article, "Is Your Company Battle Ready?" in Construction Today, one of the preeminent construction publications in the industry. Focusing on the specific performance improvement, assessment and discipline strategies from the military, Nowak identified many aspects for improvement in the field. The various benefits from this type of approach include enhancing client's business models and resilience to litigation.

Nowak, a former non-commissioned officer in the U.S. Army, served nine years combined in active and reserve capacities. He frequently speaks on veteran's issues and applying military experience to the corporate and legal world.

Read the full article on the Construction Today website.

Service Areas

Complex Tort & General
Casualty

Offices

Chicago