- Litigation

When preventive measures are not enough, our Environmental & Land Use Litigation team mounts vigorous defenses on behalf of clients who face complex challenges in courts and in administrative proceedings. Deeply experienced, we have achieved significant victories for a diverse group of clients involved in a broad range of environmental and land use disputes.

We support colleagues in our Environmental, Energy & Land Use practice group by helping our clients minimize potential exposure to environmental liabilities by anticipating, identifying and managing risk – and by applying best practices in complying with increasingly stringent environmental rules and regulations.

Members of this team of “very thorough and well prepared” (Chambers and Partners Latin America 2016) litigators work with clients to strategically resolve their environmental and land use disputes. Our clients benefit from our responsive, up-to-the-minute advice on relevant statutory, regulatory, and case law developments that can help them avoid enforcement actions from environmental agencies, multi-party claims and other litigation in a rapidly changing field.
