An McV Government Affairs Alert

March 25, 2020

As a measure to preserve the physical, emotional and economic well being of the Puerto Rican citizens in light of the COVID-19 crisis, Puerto Rico Governor, Hon. Wanda Vázquez Garced announced on March 23, 2020 a comprehensive economic plan directed at protecting the economic sectors of the Island.

The plan, adopted with the consent and approval of the Puerto Rico Financial Oversight Board consists of the following:

- Public sector employees of the central government will continue to receive salaries during the emergency period. Mayors of municipalities strongly encouraged to do the same.
- Private sector workers, small and medium sized businesses including manufacture, construction and agricultural industries, and independent service professionals are granted a first set of short term economic and fiscal initiatives:
 - Extension of due date to file Income Tax returns until July 15, 2020. Suspension of collection of sales and use tax at docks and through resale chain for three months.
 - Suspension of 10% withholding tax at source on payments for professional services for three months
 - No imposition of penalties for failure to remit bi-monthly installments of sales and use tax for a period of two months.
 - No imposition of penalties for failure to pay the first installments of estimated tax for 2020
 - Self employed individuals will be granted a $500.00 incentive.
 - Small and medium sized business with 50 employees or less that do not qualify for federal aid and which have ceased operations during the COVID-19 crisis will be granted a $1,500 incentive following the same protocol used to mitigate the impact of the earthquakes in the southwestern portion of the Island.

providers, businesses, private suppliers and non profit entities.

■ Moratoriums and postponement of payments:

- Essential services such as electricity and water are not to be suspended for nonpayment. Highway tolls are waived during the emergency.
- Ninety (90) day moratorium for payment of mortgages, car loans, personal loans, commercial loans and credit cards due to Puerto Rico Banks and Cooperatives. In order to qualify for deferment, the client must contact and coordinate with the Bank or Cooperative.

Other measures will be considered by the Governor in the future.

Please review all these measures as they will most likely have direct impact on your workforce and your business. The McConnell Valdes Emergency Task Force is on stand by to respond to question or inquiries you might have regarding the emergency package or any other concern you might have during this difficult time.
