

Tax-Exempt Organizations

Nonprofits and other tax-exempt organizations are always working to spread their message in order to reach as many people as possible to raise awareness or to support a certain cause. This charitable work does not go unnoticed; especially not by the IRS.

There are numerous regulations and requirements for public charities and private foundations to follow in order to maintain their tax-exempt status. The attorneys at Plunkett Cooney have years of experience representing nonprofit and charitable organizations.

Many of the firm's nonprofit and tax-exempt clients come rely on our attorneys for formation and application for tax-exempt status, operating and business advice as it relates to tax issues, unrelated business income issues and many other services. The attorneys at Plunkett Cooney are ready to help your organization obtain and maintain its tax exempt status for now and in the future, so you can spend more time focusing on building your brand and spreading your message.