

Crisis Response Team

Plunkett Cooney maintains a ready team of attorneys to respond to the needs of clients when emergencies arise like the national power grid failure of 2003 and the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic of 2020. Our attorneys and staff have the ability to quickly respond to such situations, and they are equipped to work remotely when necessary.

Business continuity planning and response are key in such situations, and our attorneys are available to assist on a number of fronts. We have compiled the following list of service areas your organization may require in emergency and crisis situations. Simply contact the lead attorneys below to begin the discussion:
