With 50 years of experience helping companies, contractors, employers, lawmakers and trade associations, Frank T. Mamat is one of the most experienced members of the firm's Labor & Employment Law Practice Group.

A partner in Plunkett Cooney's Bloomfield Hills office, Mr. Mamat provides counsel and assistance regarding union matters such as contract negotiations, elections, union avoidance and labor arbitrations. He advises clients on noncompete agreements, unfair labor practice litigation, harassment suits, wage and hour issues and OSHA-MIOSHA safety matters. Mr. Mamat's experience also includes resolving National Labor Relations Board matters, attempted union organization, mass picketing and violence, and secondary boycotts and pressure campaigns. He also advises clients on ERISA trust funds and related fiduciary liabilities.

Various entities ranging from the United Nations and business associations to small businesses and construction companies have routinely contacted Mr. Mamat for counsel or defense of their complex labor and union matters. A well-respected attorney known for his accessibility and responsiveness to clients, Mr. Mamat has handled virtually every type of labor matter. He also helped the Michigan Senate in 2012 draft Michigan's "Right to Work" law.

In addition to companies and employers, Mr. Mamat is well known within political circles. He has advised governments and political groups in legislative and political issues and has election law experience. Throughout his career, he has advised two former U.S. presidents, as well as multiple governors, U.S. and state senators, congressmen, mayors and county executives, along with dozens of candidate campaigns and political parties. He served as special counsel to former Michigan Governor Rick Snyder concerning anti-mandatory PLA statute enforcement and was special campaign counsel for Michigan to former President Donald Trump. He was also asked by four U.S. presidents to serve as a federal judge in Michigan, as assistant secretary of labor, as chair of the National Labor Relations Board and as chair of the Federal Labor Relations Authority. Mr. Mamat is also a registered lobbyist for nearly 40 years.

Mr. Mamat is sought after nationally for his labor law expertise and serves as labor counsel for several major employer associations and nonprofit trade associations, as well as a member of various local and national boards of directors. He is frequently asked to speak on various labor and employment law issues to major trade groups.
