Dear Colleague,

At this Seminar, you will have the opportunity to gain an in-depth look at construction claims, at the peak of this massive burst in the public works construction in California.

Stay current by hearing from leading experts who span the industry, including owners, contractors, architect-engineers, and ADR professionals. Your faculty will explore the current trends in California in design and construction contracting and claims, and will suggest practical methods of dispute prevention and resolution.

As you have may have heard, California is committing vast new funding sources to build up infrastructure over the next ten years.

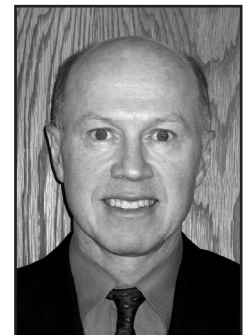

- The 2006 Infrastructure Bond Package, passed by California voters, provides $43 billion for diverse projects from highways and transit systems to schools and levees.
- The recent School Bond Acts have provided billions more for construction and remodeling of school buildings throughout the State.
- Many airport agencies are undertaking multi-million dollar airport improvement and expansion programs financed through combinations of federal, state, and local sources.
- Most recently, Governor Schwarzenegger proposed an additional $43 billion bond issue for reservoirs, colleges and prisons for the 2008 General Election Ballot. More public infrastructure work is certain to result in more disputes and more claims on public works projects!

Whether you are a construction industry professional, attorney or consultant, the information that you will learn at this Seminar will be invaluable to you.

I look forward to seeing you there!
