Employment Law Update 2008

Please join us for a lively and informative discussion regarding the many labor and employment law developments for 2008, including a review of a number of important cases currently pending before the California Supreme Court. We will discuss developments of particular interest to California employers, including:

- Wage and Hour issues such as meal and rest periods, minimum wage requirements, overtime reporting requirements, bonus and commission plans, and the administrative exemption
- Expense reimbursement requirements
- California's new sexual harassment training law
- No-match letters and the ongoing legal challenge to the Department of Homeland Security's proposed regulations
- Developments in trade secrets and unfair competition issues
- Disability law developments
- Arbitration agreements
- Document retention policies
- California's new military leave law for spouses
- Class action trends
- Misclassification of employees as independent contractors
