Honieh Udenka is an associate in the Business Trial Practice Group in the firm's Orange County office.

Areas of Practice

Honieh represents clients' interests across the country in complex disputes in a variety of fields, including brand, reputation, and crisis management, as well as commercial and business litigation. Honieh has experience in complex disputes on matters of national significance, ranging from litigation matters involving global companies, to defense and investigation work for individuals and C-suite executives. Honieh is able to develop strong relationships with clients through a client-centered approach to lawyering and by providing thoughtful analysis, judgment, and solutions to demanding and complex challenges.

Honieh is committed to expanding access to justice in Orange County through the provision of free legal services to underserved populations. To that end, she incorporates pro bono matters into her practice. Honieh is deeply committed to racial justice and the diversification of the legal profession, and she advances this mission in her role on the board of the Thurgood Marshall Bar Association and Community Legal Aid of Southern California.
