Tomasene Knight is an associate in the Business Trial Practice Group in the firm's San Francisco office.

Areas of Practice

Tomasene's practice focuses on disputes over trusts, estates, conservatorships and other fiduciary matters. She represents individuals, corporate trustees, private professional fiduciaries, and families through all aspects of trust and probate litigation, at both the trial court level and on appeal, including in will and trust contests, breach of fiduciary duty cases, accounting actions, judicial construction and modification of trusts, elder abuse actions, and contested conservatorship proceedings.

Honors

Northern California Rising Star, Super Lawyers, 2019-2023

Experience

Representative Experience

Successfully defended a client with assets of more than $200 million against petitions to conserve her person and estate, obtaining a denial of the opposing party's petition for temporary conservatorship and a dismissal of his petition for general conservatorship, all prior to the initiation of discovery or a trial.

Acted as a member of the legal team that prevailed in the First District Court of Appeal Case, Stine v. Dell'Osso (230 Cal.App.4th 834), which resulted in a published opinion clarifying successor conservator standing in a legal malpractice action.
