Tara Wilcox is special counsel in the Labor and Employment Practice Group in the firm's Del Mar office.

Areas of Practice

Tara has 30 years of experience practicing employment and traditional labor law exclusively for employers. She advises on all aspects of the employment relationship and is an experienced litigator and trial attorney.

Tara specializes in employment counseling on the gamut of issues, including discipline, termination, claims of discrimination and harassment, compensation, drug testing, and workplace violence. She regularly advises on situations involving employee leaves and the process of exploring reasonable accommodations in the disability context. She is adept at investigating claims, assessing liability, and ensuring the client is armed with a practical approach.

As a litigator, Tara handles cases from start to finish. She has obtained summary judgment for employers on numerous occasions, and she has tried and soloed jury and bench trials and has obtained complete defense verdicts and dismissals. Tara also regularly handles matters before federal and state administrative agencies including the EEOC, the Department of Labor, and their counterparts in various states.

Tara is also experienced in traditional labor matters. She has counseled clients through organizing drives and union elections, unfair labor practice charges before the National Labor Relations Board, and collective bargaining negotiations.
