Summary:

The U.S. healthcare industry continues to evolve at a break-neck pace. Participants are exploring ever more innovative ways to capitalize on a continuously fluctuating marketplace. Private equity and other financial investors are dipping their toes into the industry providing access to significant capital and allowing healthcare providers to leverage technology and data and pursue new value-based models of care. Our distinguished group of panelists will provide insight into where they see the market heading given the massive changes we are witnessing.

The panel will explore the following and more:

- How have the recent proposed changes to the healthcare laws affected investment interest in the industry?
- What is the "next big thing" in the healthcare industry?
- How are industry participants positioning themselves for success?
- What role does M&A play in growth plans for various industry participants and how will financial investors drive growth?
