

Cannabis Webinar Wednesday: Cannabis Regulation Is the New Frontier in Real Estate and Land Use Control

08.21.2019

California has positioned itself as a leader on emerging cannabis policy. While federal law, including the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970, still prohibits cannabis-related activities within the State's borders, several largely progressive laws in California permit the possession, cultivation, transportation, and distribution of cannabis. This program will cover:

- The history of cannabis legalization in California
- What local governments may regulate and deem appropriate use of land within their jurisdictions
- Court reactions sustain local government control of cannabis activity
- Application of CEQA to local government ordinances
- Common trends we are seeing by local governments
- Fundamental cannabis specific concepts in leases
