5:00 p.m. – 6:30 p.m. GMT

6:00 p.m. – 7:30 p.m. CET

What Do The Next Four Years Hold for U.S. International Trade Regulation?

U.S. regulations often reach beyond the boundaries of the United States and affect transactions around the world. The presidential election will either bring a new administration to the White House, or reinstall the same President, unfettered by reelection considerations. In either case, the election outcome will drive major changes to your business and that of your customers and partners.

To help you anticipate forthcoming shifts in the international system, we offer a brief and engaging presentation on how the election may change the shape of the world in the coming four years. The discussion will focus on U.S. regulations that affect international business and how those regulations may shift in the coming four years. However, there will be open time for your questions and discussion.
