About:

The COVID pandemic has had a profound impact on healthcare services. Providers have faced historic peaks and valleys due to forced shutdowns, social distancing mandates, and changes in patient behavior. They have weathered the storm and rebounded with new approaches to old problems. As a result, the growth equity and M&A markets have come roaring back. This panel of leading healthcare executives and investors will discuss:

Key lessons from the COVID pandemic, early on and as healthcare providers adjusted to the facts on the ground

Healthcare sectors that have proven to be resilient or grown

Where PE investors and strategic acquirers will focus their efforts

How technology is empowering or disrupting healthcare business models

How will federal policy changes impact M&A
