The New York State Office of the Medicaid Inspector General (OMIG) recently published comprehensive guidance related to provider compliance programs, voluntary self-disclosures, and Medicaid managed care fraud, waste, and abuse. We will discuss the guidance, as well as recent changes to the New York State compliance program regulations and potential penalties for non-compliance. We will also discuss OMIG's self-disclosure guidance for refunding Medicaid overpayments, including the potential False Claims Act implications of failing to refund overpayments in a timely manner.

Who should attend: administrators, compliance officers, in-house counsel, CEOs and CFOs of hospitals, nursing homes, home care agencies, OPWDD agencies, OMH agencies, hospice providers, substance use disorder agencies, Medicaid managed care plans, physician groups, and other enrolled Medicaid providers that claim or receive $1 million or more directly or indirectly (including managed care network participating providers) from the Medicaid program in any consecutive twelve-month period.
