

Sheppard Mullin & Control Risks FCPA Workshop

Preventing Corruption: Good Business Practices = Good Business

05.12.2010

Registration: 8:30am

Event: 9:00am - 12:00pm

Recent trends demonstrate that virtually every industry is vulnerable to potential liability under the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) and global Anti-Bribery Conventions. Moreover, regulators are increasingly conducting both industry-wide reviews and global investigations of targeted organizations. The recent indictments of twenty-two individuals in the military equipment industry demonstrate that, regardless of size, any company involved in international commerce is now a potential target.

In a dynamic and interactive workshop, Sheppard Mullin and Control Risks will introduce attendees to a comprehensive approach to help prevent, detect and remediate violations of the FCPA, the Anti-Bribery Conventions and PRC corruption laws. Working through scenario-based exercises, participants will manage real world FCPA challenges, examining both prevention and remediation, and will experience first-hand the complexities of dealing with corruption risks. Our experts will share with attendees their broad experience and insights into how organizations not only can prevent violations, but also respond to a violation effectively if one occurs.
