Sheppard Mullin has been recognized by GlobeSt's Real Estate Forum as a Healthcare Influencer, celebrated for being an impactful and accomplished leader within the healthcare real estate industry in 2022.

Selected among top individuals and firms, the firm is saluted for its unique approach to providing services to some of the largest health systems, investors, medical groups, developers and financiers across the U.S., helping them work toward their missions.

"Whether working on estoppel certificates or complicated joint-ventures and syndications for the development of cancer treatment centers, the healthcare real estate team at Sheppard Mullin strives to provide the services that allow clients to work toward their missions... Led by partners Timothy Reimers and Scott Timpe, the team has closed hundreds of real estate transactions during the past three years covering more than 1.1 million rentable square feet in medical office, building and clinical space. During the pandemic, the team changed its approach to negotiating force majeure provisions in contracts; modified the healthcare regulatory provisions in its contracts to protect clients from both expected and unforeseen changes to the regulatory landscape of the healthcare industry; and negotiated for clients to have broad flexibility to change their operations and uses in order to respond to changes in the delivery of healthcare."
