Sheppard Mullin San Francisco partner Neil Popovi has been recognized by Berkeley Law as a Deans Emeritus Lecturer and was named the Frank C. Newman Lecturer.

According to Berkeley Law, “The Deans Emeritus Lecturer awards celebrate Berkeley Law lecturers who have served the law school for twenty or more years and completed twenty or more semesters of teaching (both are required for this honor).”

Popovi began teaching at Berkeley Law in 1996. Among the classes he teaches at Berkeley Law are International Environmental Law and International Litigation and Arbitration. He also teaches Law, Politics and Policymaking (Rule of Law) in the graduate Master of Development Practice program at the Goldman School of Public Policy at the University of California – Berkeley.
