

Employer's Guide To Covid-19 And Emerging Workplace Issues

New Online Book Provides Comprehensive Resource for Employers During – and After – The Pandemic

06.30.2021

Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton LLP, in partnership with Castle Publications, is pleased to announce the publication of Employer's Guide to COVID-19 and Emerging Workplace Issues: Year 2. The nearly-800-page online book, created by Sheppard Mullin partner and Castle Publications founder Richard Simmons and Sheppard Mullin partners Brian Murphy and Adam Rosenthal, provides employers with a comprehensive resource for managing employment issues related to the COVID-19 pandemic during – and after – the crisis. It is a one-stop, go-to “desk reference” that provides businesses and employers throughout the country reliable information that is a click away. Please note: this publication was last updated on June 30, 2021.

“COVID-19 has fundamentally changed America’s workplaces and the ways employers across the country must address their obligations to employees,” said Simmons. “Our definitive new Guide provides employers with a thorough analysis of current and constantly-evolving labor and employment laws to help employers effectively navigate this new employment world.” Some of the topics covered in the Employer’s Guide include:

- Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA): Comprehensive analysis of Department of Labor guidance, regulations and other authorities issued since March 2020.
- First & Second Generation Challenges: Addresses employer obligations in the wake of the COVID-19 shutdown, and legal strategies for employers emerging from the crisis.
- Federal and State Guidance: Compilation and analysis of CDC guidelines; reshaping wage and hour considerations, the increasing role of public health standards in workplaces, new remote working environments; continuing WARN Act responsibilities, the CARES Act, Unemployment Programs, OSHA and workplace safety, and more.
