

 Impact Finance

In addition to their robust tax credit practice, our attorneys regularly advise lenders – including community development financial institutions, nonprofits and other mission-driven organizations – and investors in a wide variety of impact lending and equity transactions. These include charter school finance funds, healthy foods lending initiatives, predevelopment and construction loans for affordable housing developments, health care finance transactions and preferred equity investments. Our TCIF attorneys are able to draw upon Stinson’s broad experience in banking and financial services, commercial lending, real estate and structured finance as needed to bring these transactions to an efficient and cost-effective close, working to maximize benefits to impactful projects.
