Direct: 612.335.7252

Office: Minneapolis

Doug's familiarity with accounting principles benefits his work in business valuation disputes, class actions and litigation involving corporate governance.

Individuals and companies, both plaintiffs and defendants, rely on Doug to represent them in complex business and class action litigation involving insurance, products liability, corporate governance, shareholder disputes, franchise and distributorships, fraud, and consumer protection. He has defended clients in regulatory examinations, investigations and enforcement proceedings involving insurance, fraud and securities.

Doug's cases frequently involve franchise agreements, breaches of contract and warranties, and unfair and deceptive trade practices. He has conducted internal investigations relating to securities fraud, alleged fraud involving government programs, regulatory and enforcement issues and violations of insurance and securities laws. Additionally, he frequently advises companies to minimize class action and regulatory risk.

EXPERIENCE

Doug represents dealerships and others in franchise and distribution disputes.
