Jared excels at demystifying complex real estate and finance matters, providing clear, strategic advice and innovative solutions for his clients.

Jared maintains a national practice, representing investors, lenders, developers and community development entities in complex transactions utilizing federal and state new markets and historic tax credits. He also advises clients on conventional real estate development, including mixed-used projects, public finance and commercial leasing.

Jared has extensive experience in all aspects of real estate development, including tax credit and impact finance. His work includes financing the rehabilitation of historic buildings for various uses, such as hotels and commercial properties, and supporting the construction of new mixed-used developments and affordable housing. Jared has also successfully structured real estate and impact finance transactions across the nation.
