Office: Dallas

Jeff is a skilled business litigator who combines strategic thinking with a steady command of complex disputes.

His practice focuses on business and commercial litigation, representing clients in a wide variety of matters including fraud, breach of contract, professional liability, and insurance coverage disputes. Whether advising on litigation strategy or developing a case for summary disposition, trial or appeal, Jeff draws on a deep understanding of both the legal and practical considerations that drive business outcomes.

Jeff approaches every matter with careful analysis and a strategic mindset, ensuring that each case is guided by both legal insight and practical considerations. His dedication to thorough preparation, clear communication, and thoughtful problem-solving makes him a trusted advisor for clients facing complex business disputes.

Jeff is especially proud of his work as an appellate attorney before the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims, where he has honed his ability to craft persuasive arguments and navigate nuanced legal challenges, while representing our nation's disabled veterans.
