and territory acquisitions.

Robert has closed numerous buy/sell transactions for independent community banks and non-depository institutions. Robert assists boards of directors in evaluating mergers and acquisitions opportunities, capital raises, strategic planning and navigating current industry trends. He also advises clients regarding corporate governance, operational matters, regulatory compliance and application approvals.

As outside general counsel for several privately-held companies, including a national office product supply company, a petroleum fuel supplier and a hedge fund firm, Robert counsels boards of directors, senior management, entrepreneurs and their advisors on legal issues related to capital formation, mergers and acquisitions, and corporate governance for companies with all types of ownership structures and charters.

EXPERIENCE

Robert offers extensive experience drafting and negotiating contracts, including partnership agreements; joint venture agreements; limited liability company operating agreements; stock purchase agreements; real estate agreements; service agreements; license agreements; royalty agreements; surface use agreements; engineering, procurement and construction agreements; loan and security agreements and other domestic and international commercial contracts.

When disputes arise, Robert helps businesses resolve contractual, banking, financing, real estate, and environmental issues.

A former Colorado Department of Transportation Commissioner, Robert handled strategic planning and public outreach for a major Transportation Expansion Project (T-REX) that included widening the Southeast Corridor of I-25 and a new light rail transit system.

Robert is certified by the National Association of Development Companies to advise certified development companies regarding the Small Business Administration 504 loan program.
