

Politics and Pandemics – Consequences for Employers and Employees

Webinar

12.09.2020 | 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. CST

President-elect Joe Biden has stated that he will be “the strongest labor president” the labor movement has ever had. What will a Biden-appointed National Labor Relations Board look like, and what changes is it likely to make to union election rules, and the law governing the relationships between employers, employees and unions? What will the EEOC and Department of Labor priorities be under a Biden administration? And how will the new administration deal with the coronavirus and its impact on the workplace?

Topics to be covered include:

- The Biden Board – Who and When
- Fast Elections, Joint Employers and the Return of the Micro Unit
- Protected Concerted Activity, Employer Rules and Contract Coverage
- Georgia On My Mind – the PRO Act
- DOL and EEOC Initiatives
- Wage and Hour Issues and Initiatives
- COVID-19 – How the Response May Change in January

Register online to attend this webinar.

CONTACTS

Brittany Barrientos

Richard W. Pins

Politics and Pandemics – Consequences for Employers and Employees

Joseph E. Santucci, Jr.

RELATED CAPABILITIES

Labor, Employment & Benefits

STINSON

STINSON LLP \ STINSON.COM