Please join Stinson LLP for a webinar on bank fee litigation presented by Partner George Verschelden on Tuesday, August 10.

Financial institutions have long been a target of consumer class actions challenging all types of consumer fees. In addition to the risk of a potential judgment, defending against a consumer class action can consume a financial institution's valuable time and resources. In this webinar, we will offer insight and guidance as to how to be prepared for and ideally mitigate these issues.

Topics to be discussed include:

- The history of consumer class actions against financial institutions
- The typical legal theories asserted in consumer class actions against financial institutions
- What you can do now to reduce your risk of a consumer class action lawsuit
