Stinson LLP Partners Brian Cummings and Murray Silverstein are featured in a recent Law360 article, "Stinson Expands Tampa Shop With Greenspoon Marder Attys."

The attorneys highlight their decision to join Stinson in the firm's newly opened office in downtown Tampa, Florida. They said Stinson is a Midwest-based firm that is rapidly growing and features a collaborative workplace culture.

The attorneys also describe their current litigation practices, including how they plan to structure their practices as Stinson continues to grow to address client needs in robust markets around the country.

"It's appealing to be able to help shape the direction and the focus of the office as opposed to joining a group that's well established and already at capacity," Silverstein said. "We're going to help shape the overall appearance, the work ethic, the client base and the approach to be a major presence in Tampa Bay."

The article also provides details about attorney Christina Huckfeldt, who joined the firm in its Tampa office alongside Cummings and Silverstein.

Cummings has nearly two decades of experience litigating a wide variety of commercial matters and civil disputes in federal and state court throughout the nation. His practice focuses on complex consumer class action defense and representing defendants and plaintiffs in real estate and general business litigation. He also frequently handles appellate cases.

Silverstein's experience in the courtroom and his ability to streamline complicated issues provides effective representation to his clients through strong written and oral advocacy skills. He utilizes skills honed through more than 30 years of offering clients an effective approach to resolving or litigating
