

Stinson Adds Cybersecurity and Data Privacy Attorney to Dallas Office

Press Release

11.30.2023

Stinson LLP is pleased to welcome Jenifer McIntosh, CIPP, to the firm's Dallas office. McIntosh joins as an of counsel attorney in the firm's Intellectual Property & Technology Practice Division.

McIntosh has over 20 years of experience applying privacy, cybersecurity, intellectual property, internet and consumer protection laws to business activities. Her practice is focused on data privacy and data security issues relating to technology-driven transactions and helping businesses protect digital assets. She counsels clients across a variety of industries, including pharmaceutical and health technology, private equity, SaaS providers, ad-tech and e-commerce.

"We are thrilled to welcome Jenifer to the firm and she is having an immediate impact counseling clients on data and privacy issues," Stinson's Intellectual Property & Technology Practice Division Co-Chair Steve Cosentino said. "She brings a unique perspective to the complex and intricate worlds of intellectual property, cybersecurity and data privacy. Her collaborative approach and ability to work effectively with others toward a common goal will help us enhance our commitment to providing exceptional legal services to our clients."

McIntosh has extensive experience handling international transfer requirements, cybersecurity risk management, strategy and data governance, and the impact of dark patterns and customer expectations in e-commerce. She also has in-depth experience preparing and responding to cybersecurity incidents, privacy issues in health care, clinical trials and children's data, in addition to government agency enforcement, marketing privacy issues and workplace privacy. McIntosh also frequently handles commercial litigation cases, including complex contract and licensing disputes, wiretapping violations, patent litigation, business torts and regulatory investigations defense.
