

Stinson Continues East Coast Growth, Welcomes Corporate Finance Partner Jay Taylor

Press Release

10.09.2025

Stinson LLP is pleased to welcome Jay Taylor to its New York office. Taylor joins as a partner in the firm's Corporate Finance Practice Division.

With more than 30 years of experience as a transactional attorney, Taylor advises clients on a wide range of corporate and financial transactions, with a focus on capital markets, equity financing, and strategic business structuring. He counsels corporate entities, equity funds and financial institutions, from smaller emerging start-ups to leading Fortune 500 companies.

"Jay's extensive experience in corporate finance, fund formation, and capital markets will be a tremendous asset to our clients. His arrival strengthens our ability to provide sophisticated, practical solutions across industries, asset classes, and jurisdictions," said David Jenson, co-chair of the firm's Corporate Finance Practice Division.

Earlier in his career, Taylor gained comprehensive knowledge in capital market transactions and structured finance, further enhancing his ability to guide clients through sophisticated matters relating to securities, commodities, currency and synthetic transactions and structures across several asset classes to hedge business and financial risk. His experience includes other financial risk management tools such as collateral arrangements and credit guarantees. Taylor has significant experience in structuring and representing start-ups in various industries and helping companies and funds raise financing through debt and equity offerings. He advises companies on a range of organizational and transactional issues and also represents a notable number of clients in the sports, media and entertainment space.

"I am thrilled to be a part of Stinson's growing New York City office," said Taylor. "The firm's collaborative approach and national platform provide an ideal environment to deliver innovative solutions for clients across industries."
