Stephen Buchenroth, a partner in the real estate group of the Vorys Columbus office, was quoted in a Columbus Business First story recognizing Mark Bunner, the CFO of Stanley Steemer International, as the 2012 Columbus Corporate CFO of the Year. Buchenroth successfully nominated Bunner for the honor.

The story states:

"As an attorney who has practiced business and real estate law for some 38 years, I have had the opportunity to work with and observe many corporate CFOs," wrote Buchenroth, a partner at Vorys Sater Seymour and Pease LLP who serves as outside counsel to Stanley Steemer. "Of those, only a few, in my opinion, merit consideration for recognition as the CFO of the Year in Central Ohio. Mark Bunner is at the top of that list."

Bunner's willingness to work with franchise owners to help them establish successful businesses, his dedication to helping employees understand company finances, his ability to manage cash flow and his contributions to the community make him worthy of the award, Buchenroth told Business First."
