

Roe Selected for Inaugural CMBA Leadership Academy

NEWS | 10.4.2017

Amanda Roe, an associate in the Vorys Cleveland office, has been selected for the inaugural class of the Cleveland Metropolitan Bar Association (CMBA) Leadership Academy. According to the CMBA, the leadership academy is 10-month program of leadership and professional development programming. A panel of past and present CMBA presidents, trustees and bar leaders selected 34 attorneys to participate in the inaugural class.

Roe focuses her practice on antitrust representations with a particular emphasis on antitrust issues relating to the health care industry. She has significant experience representing clients in both litigation and transactional contexts regarding issues such as price-fixing, mergers and acquisitions, monopolization, predatory pricing, price discrimination, and the Nonprofit Institutions Act. Roe counsels clients on antitrust issues related to corporate transactions and joint ventures, group purchasing organizations, general antitrust compliance, and investigations by the Federal Trade Commission. Roe also works with manufacturers and retailers on issues relating to Minimum Advertised Pricing policies and Resale Price Maintenance. She regularly presents to health care industry participants regarding antitrust compliance.
