Allen Rutz, a partner in the firm's Columbus office, was quoted in a story entitled "2Reveal charted new course amid recession." The story, which appeared in Columbus Business First, was about a 3D graphics and animation company. Rutz was quoted about the company's construction of an animated replica of a building, which was used by Rutz in a products liability case.

The story states: "Frankly, I was very pleased with the results. First, in giving me context and in giving me lines of sight,' said the former engineer of a case that was eventually settled. 'We had competing animations going on...but my view was, we won on that point,' Rutz said."
