Joe Miller, a partner in the Vorys Columbus office, was quoted in a Columbus Dispatch story titled “Columbus lawsuit could potentially shutter new Greyhound, Barons bus terminal on West Side.” The story focused on an intercity bus terminal in Columbus and the City of Columbus’ attempts to close it after providing zoning approval.

The story states:

“The City itself explicitly approved this location for an intercity bus terminal and it is a fully permitted use under current zoning,” said Joseph Miller, an attorney for Barons. “Yet, the City has repeatedly targeted Barons Bus and its passengers with unfounded accusations of city code violations and criminal activity.”

“The City should instead be partnering with Barons Bus to provide accessible transportation to all city of Columbus residents,” calling it ‘critically important.’”
