

Publications

The Future of the Commodity Futures Market: How Customer Segregated Accounts Can Be Better Protected From Insolvent Futures Commission Merchants

Related Attorneys

Zachary T. Brumfield

Related Services

Finance

AUTHORED ARTICLE | Fall 2013

John Marshall Law School Global Markets Law Journal

Zachary Brumfield, a staff attorney in the Vorys Columbus office, authored an article for the Fall 2013 edition of the John Marshall Law School Global Markets Law Journal. The article also ran in Thompson Reuters' Futures & Derivatives Law Report. His article focused on possible strategies to protect customer segregated accounts from insolvent futures commission merchants.

To read Brumfield's article, visit the Global Markets Law Journal website.