Craig's extensive litigation experience helps him to examine and understand issues from various vantage points.

OVERVIEW

Craig O'Neill has a broad range of experience in complex insurance coverage, bad faith, construction and surety and general commercial litigation. For over 20 years, Craig has litigated a wide range of matters, including construction delay and disruption, defective design and mechanics' lien claims in federal and state court on behalf of project owners, general contractors, subcontractors, sureties and design professionals. He regularly drafts construction agreements and advises clients on construction contract management and administrative issues. Craig also works with surety clients on an array of matters, including payment and performance bond claims and claims to enforce indemnity agreements.

Craig also counsels insurance company clients on complex coverage issues under general liability policies and other lines of coverage. He has extensive experience representing insurers in coverage litigation involving environmental pollution, asbestos and other hazardous substances and construction defect claims. His broad litigation experience helps him to examine and understand issues from multiple vantage points.

Prior to joining the firm, Craig was with a regional law firm where he gained valuable experience handling commercial litigation and professional liability matters on behalf of design professionals.

RECOGNITION AND INVOLVEMENT

Craig has volunteered as a "Big Brother" for Big Brothers and Big Sisters of America. He also volunteers regularly at clinics held by the Senior Law Center to assist seniors in the preparation of life planning documents including simple wills and powers of attorney.
