John has been handling insurance-related cases across the country for over 25 years. His cutting-edge practice on coverage disputes involves Superfund site matters and LTE claims. He also handles first-party property cases defending insurance agents and brokers.

OVERVIEW

John has over 25 years of experience in insurance coverage, "bad faith" and other litigation. He represents insurance company clients in coverage disputes involving environmental pollution, asbestos and other complex claims.

John has committed himself to understanding and serving his clients' needs, delivering maximum value and upholding the firm's long and proud tradition of excellence, commitment and creativity. He has been involved in sophisticated insurance-related cases in California, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and Vermont. Among these are substantial coverage matters involving numerous Superfund and other hazardous waste sites around the country and abroad and thousands of underlying asbestos and other "long tail" claims. In addition to liability coverage, John has experience handling first-party property cases and has defended insurance agents/brokers malpractice and other tort and contract claims.

During law school, John served on the staff of the Rutgers Law Journal and authored two criminal law publications. He also interned with the Honorable Edward R. Becker of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

John has judged law school moot court programs and served as a court appointed arbitrator in tort and contract cases. He successfully completed the Dickinson School of Law trial advocacy program for practicing lawyers.
