"This acquisition is part of a targeted investment strategy by the firm," said Andrew Susko, Managing Partner, White and Williams. "In addition to the Surety and Construction Group, we have already seen and expect to experience additional growth in the firm's Real Estate Finance, Financial Restructuring and Bankruptcy, and Cyber and Data Protection practices in the coming months. Our recent investment in all of these groups ensures that we can meet growing client demands and that we are well positioned for the current economic direction that will likely affect these areas."

"This acquisition comes on the heels of growth in the Real Estate Finance Group, which recently added four partners, the Financial Restructuring and Bankruptcy Group, which added two partners, and the Cyber and Data Protection Group that also recently added two partners." Susko said.
