

International Projects

Globalization has changed the face of the construction industry. Increasingly, participants in major construction projects are crossing borders in order to achieve their goals. Conducting business internationally can be a complicated process, which is why Zetlin & De Chiara LLP is dedicated to helping clients navigate the increasingly complicated landscape of international construction.

Our attorneys have a comprehensive understanding of the intricacies involved in conducting business internationally. We also work closely with local counsel to enable our clients to carefully evaluate international opportunities.
